Probation Population in New York State 2021

The state Division of Criminal Justice Services regulates and funds local probation departments that operate in each of the 57 counties and City of New York.

Probation is a court-ordered sentence that allows individuals who have been convicted of crimes to remain in the community while being supervised and connected to services and support to help them lead crime-free lives. This sanction is an alternative to incarceration, although some individuals serve what is known as a split sentence: time in jail followed by probation supervision upon release from incarceration.

This report provides an overview of the state's adult probation population, which includes individuals whose probation supervision was transferred to New York from another state under the Interstate Compact (as of Dec. 31, 2021). Data for this report are derived from the Integrated Probation Registrant System, which is maintained by DCJS. The COVID-19 pandemic disrupted criminal justice system operations in 2020. As a result, fewer cases were disposed in the courts, and fewer individuals were sentenced to probation.

Demographic information (sex, age when sentenced and race/ethnicity) of individuals on probation; conviction offense type; and discharge type are presented for New York State and its two regions: New York City and Non-New York City.

- New York City: Bronx, Kings, Manhattan, Queens, Richmond
- Non-New York City: Albany, Allegany, Broome, Cattaraugus, Cayuga, Chautauqua, Chemung, Chenango, Clinton, Columbia, Cortland, Delaware, Dutchess, Erie, Essex, Franklin, Fulton, Genesee, Greene, Hamilton, Herkimer, Jefferson, Lewis, Livingston, Madison, Monroe, Montgomery, Nassau, Niagara, Oneida, Onondaga, Ontario, Orange, Orleans, Oswego, Otsego, Rensselaer, Rockland, Putnam, Saratoga, Schoharie, Schenectady, Schuyler, Seneca, St. Lawrence, Steuben, Suffolk, Sullivan, Tioga, Tompkins, Ulster, Warren, Washington, Wayne, Westchester, Wyoming and Yates

This report provides information on:

- Adults sentenced in 2021
- Adults under supervision as of December 31, 2021
- Adults discharged in 2021

The report also includes county-specific data in eight appendices:

- Appendix A: Adults Sentenced to Probation, 2017 2021

Adults Sentenced to Probation

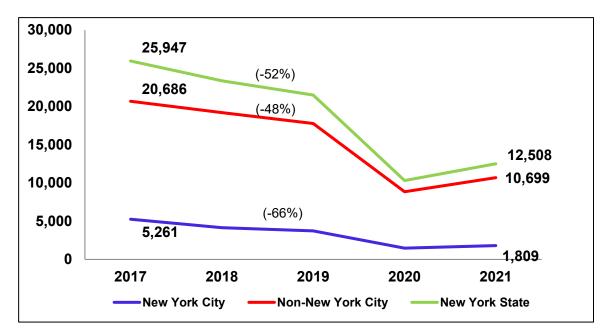

Adults Sentenced to Probation: Five-Year Annual Trends

The number of adults sentenced to probation in New York State decreased 52 percent during the five-year period from 2017 to 2021, largely due to declines in 2020 following the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic.

New York City saw a greater decline in the number of adults sentenced to probation than counties outside of New York City (66% vs. 48%).

In 2021, courts across the state sentenced 12,508 adults to probation, with the vast majority supervised by departments outside New York City: 10,699 (86%) compared to 1,809 (14%) in New York City.

Adults Sentenced to Probation: 2017 – 2021

Note: This table excludes 3,259 individuals placed on interim supervision, which allows the court to adjourn sentencing for up to one year from the date of conviction to see whether individuals are successful on probation. The court may terminate interim supervision at any time if the individual is not successful and may sentence the individual to jail or prison.

New York State Trends in Conviction Offenses

The proportion of adults sentenced to probation by conviction offense type remained consistent from 2017 through 2021, with DWI/AUO being the most common conviction offense type for each of the five years.

In 2021, other violence/coercion offenses became the second most common conviction offense, followed by property offenses. Other violence/coercion offenses increased from 17 percent in 2017 to 20 percent in 2021, while property offenses decreased from 20 percent to 16 percent during the same period.

New York State Conviction Offense Types: 2017 - 2021

Violent Felony Offenses (VFOs) are defined in Penal Law Article 70.02.

Other Violence/Coercion Offenses include, but are not limited to, felony and misdemeanor crimes against individuals or property, such as assault, harassment and arson.

Drug Offenses are defined in Penal Law Article 220 and Penal Law Article 221.

Driving While Intoxicated/Aggravated Unlicensed Operation Offenses are defined in Vehicle and Traffic Law and involve driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs and driving without a license.

Property Offenses include crimes such as burglary and trespass, criminal mischief, larceny and criminal possession of stolen property, among others.

Other Unknown Offenses include crimes such as health care fraud, agricultural and markets offenses, and environmental conservation offenses. This category also includes individuals with convictions in other states whose probation supervision has been transferred to New York State under the Interstate Compact. Conviction charges in those cases may not be reported.

Trends in Conviction Offense Types by Region

The number of sentences to probation declined in New York State, in and outside of New York City during the past five years. The decrease was driven by declines in different conviction offenses in each region:

- In New York City, fewer adults were sentenced to probation after convictions to drug offenses (-74%), other offenses (-74%), DWI/AUO offenses (-67%) and property offenses (-67%)
- Outside of New York City, the most significant decreases were seen in adults sentenced after convictions to property crimes (-61%) and drug offenses (-58%).

Adults Discharged from Probation

Adults Discharged from Probation: Five-Year Trends

The number of adults discharged from probation supervision decreased by 34 percent In New York State when comparing 2017 to 2021 (34,595 vs. 22,962).

Between 2017 and 2021, the number of adults discharged from probation in New York City decreased by 39 percent and outside New York City it declined by 32 percent.

Adults Discharged from Probation: 2017 - 2021

Discharge Type

In 2021, courts discharged 22,962 adults from probation supervision, the vast majority outside New York City (81% or 18,681).

Probation sentences for most felony convictions are either three, four or five years. State law requires a longer probation term of 10 years for felony sex crimes.

Probation sentences for misdemeanor convictions are either one, two or three years, depending on the type of misdemeanor (Class A, B or unclassified). State law requires a six-year sentence for misdemeanor sexual assault.

In New York State, 49 percent of adults under probation supervision were discharged after serving the full sentence imposed by the court; 20 percent of adults were discharged from supervision early; and 16 percent of adults had their probation revoked:

- 13 percent for technical violations, such as violating one or more court-ordered conditions of their probation supervision (e.g., failing drug tests, missing home and office visits); and
- Three percent for new convictions.

Seven percent were "referred for further court action." These usually are interim cases, which are "referred for further court action" to either be formally sentenced to probation or to have their supervision terminated.

There were regional differences in the type of discharges granted by the court:

- In New York City, 75 percent of adults on probation remained under supervision until reaching their maximum expiration date, compared to 43 percent of adults outside New York City.
- Outside New York City, a higher percentage of adults were granted early discharge by the court than in New York City (23% vs. 9%).
- There were more technical revocations outside New York City compared to in New York City (20% vs. 5%).

Total	4,279	100%	18,681	100%	22,962	100%

Maximum Expiration: The probation case reaches the supervision end date ordered by the court.

Early Discharge: The court of jurisdiction discharges an individual from probation supervision before the maximum expiration date.

Revoked-Technical Violation: The court terminates the sentence because an individual fails to comply with the conditions of probation.

Revoked-New Conviction: The court terminates the sentence because an individual is convicted of a new offense.

Early Discharge Due to New Conviction: The court discharges an individual from probation after a subsequent conviction to a new offense.

Referred for Further Court Action: This typically occurs when interim cases are closed – for either a positive or negative outcome – and the court must determine next steps.

Other: The court imposes certain sentences to state prison pursuant to Penal Law Section 65.15 or authorizes the transfer of custody and supervision to federal authorities pursuant to Criminal Procedure Law Section 410.80(4).
